more information concerning this annual report for fiscal year 2019.

Greetings,

On behalf of Civil Air Patrol and its Board of Governors, I am pleased to present to you our 2019 Annual Report. This annual report touts the vigilant efforts of our 66,000 citizen volunteers in the past fiscal year. They perform many missions for America, using their professional knowledge, skills and expertise to help Civil Air Patrol fulfill its U.S. Air Force auxiliary role of supporting the search and rescue, emergency services and homeland security needs of the Air Force — our Total Force partner. They also play a leading role in aerospace education, using national academic standards-based aviation/STEM education, and serve as outstanding mentors to over 28,000 young people participating in CAP's cadet programs.

This report also reflects Civil Air Patrol's emphasis on philanthropy. This focus comes from the Board of Governors' commitment to the future of CAP, and its effect is reflected in a multipage list of our donors, which you will find in this report. This list is led by the 2019 Commander's Circle (on pages 18-19), which lists donors of $1,000 or more. We are so grateful for the generosity of CAP members and others who support our important missions. These contributions are vital to the growth of CAP and its programmatic impact, so please take the time to peruse our donors list.

Another highlight of CAP's philanthropy efforts in 2019 is the reactivation of the Civil Air Patrol Foundation, which has experienced growth in endowments. Those funds are also listed (on page 35).

Finally, you'll find a summary of our financials (on pages 12-13), which marks CAP's 12th consecutive unmodified audit. An unmodified audit opinion is the gold standard, meaning our monetary statements pass muster with conventional accounting practices of the day.

Truly, Civil Air Patrol is a solid investment in our communities and the future of America. That's why CAP is highly regarded today as one of the premier public service organizations in the United States, benefiting the nation with an estimated economic impact of more than $208 million in volunteer hours in the past year.

All of this was made possible through the support of the Air Force and Civil Air Patrol's growing number of generous donors, who include many of our members as well as others who contributed to our missions during the past year. Let me publicly thank you for your unwavering support.

Semper Vigilans!

National Commander/CEO

CADET PROGRAMS

Cadets Attended National Cadet Special Activities

25% Received Financial Assistance to Attend

Cadet Chief Master Sgt. Genevieve McKenzie of the Idaho Wing is one of many female cadets who learned to fly through the Cadet Wings program. To date, nearly 25% of those earning a private pilot certificate are women — far above the norm for American civilian and military aviation.

FLIGHT ACADEMIES

Twenty-four flight academies are among the more than 50 National Cadet Special Activities available to CAP youth each summer. There, hundreds of cadets learn to fly, and many get a chance to actually take solo flights.

O-RIDES

For thousands of youth, Civil Air Patrol provides their first aviation experience with orientation flights, or O-rides, within their first year of cadet membership. CAP also provides O-rides to more than 6,400 Air Force ROTC and Air Force Junior ROTC cadets each year.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

Each summer, Civil Air Patrol's cadet program offers more than 1,500 members in-depth leadership training and career exploration through National Cadet Special Activities. The training allows each cadet to explore careers in a wide variety of fields, including military service, aerospace and aviation.

The Cadet Encampment Assistance Program (CEAP) enables disadvantaged youth to benefit from a character-building/STEM-learning activity. Funded by the Air Force, CEAP has helped dramatically increase CAP's encampment and activity enrollment in recent years.

Involvement in color guard and leadership activities like National Blue Beret and Cadet Advisory Council are examples of the CAP cadet program's "service-learning" culture.

Youth Development Conference

Former NFL player Thomas R. Williams (left), a speaker at the Youth Development Conference, presents Maj. David Trick of the Maryland Wing's Esperanza Middle School Flight with a copy of Jon Gordon's "The Energy Bus." Williams' presentation was part of the proceedings at CAP's first Youth Development Conference, which leveraged the resources of the Boys & Girls Clubs of America. The focus of the conference was on adult professional development, and it was attended by over 80 region and wing cadet program directors from across the nation.

Civil Air Patrol cadets are leaders in the Air Force Association's CyberPatriot program. Each year, about 500 cadet teams participate in the AFA's National High School Youth Cyber Security Competition. CAP also provides National Cadet Special Activities for cadets to learn more about cyber security.

Aerospace Education

Developing dynamic curriculum for grades K-12, including a suite of interactive activities, helps teachers generate excitement about science, technology, engineering and more.

STEM KITS

Civil Air Patrol's innovative STEM Kit program, now in its sixth year, reaches more than 400,000 students each year. There are currently 18 kits, including Quadcopter (seen here). Two more are being developed — Wind Tunnel and Cyber.

After working with STEM Kits, 80% of students and cadets are more interested in pursuing careers in aerospace, aviation, science, technology, engineering and math.

TOP

CAP's Teacher Orientation Program (TOP) flights are now Air Force-assigned missions, funded with federal dollars. In 2019, CAP flew 594 orientation flights for 399 teachers from 32 CAP wings, and dramatically increased the number of teacher members.

Emergency Services & Operations

Hours Were Flown in CAP's Fleet

Force-Multiplier

As the official auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force and a Total Force partner, Civil Air Patrol conducts search and rescue, disaster relief, air defense training and other critical missions for America. Aircrews flew nearly 96,000 hours in CAP's signature red, white and blue single-engine planes. More than 80% of these flying hours were on Air Force-assigned missions.

Technology, both old and new, helped in the performance of these missions. Cellphone forensics software along with radar analysis tools developed and updated by CAP members have revolutionized search and rescue efforts in recent years, and this past year was no exception as the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center once again credited CAP with helping save more than 100 lives.

Recent advances in aerial photography (seen here) greatly enhanced CAP's disaster relief responses in 2019, helping aircrews provide valuable 3D imagery to the Federal Emergency Management Agency. That technology was most recently used in the Bahamas after Hurricane Dorian and in Puerto Rico, which was devastated by Hurricane Maria, and is sure to be used even more in the future by CAP's well-trained professional volunteers.

AIR DEFENSE EXERCISES

CAP aircrews served as targets of interest for the military's air defense intercept training and evaluations in over 300 missions across America in 2019. The aircrews flew 2,979 hours on 1,614 sorties, participating in training and distribution of awareness materials to general aviation pilots in the area prior to special events like Super Bowl LIII in Atlanta. They stayed in constant contact with each other and ground crews through CAP's nationwide communications network.

sUAS

Members from the Oklahoma Wing participated in the wing's first ever sUAS (small Unmanned Aerial Systems) training exercise. Certain prerequisites must be met before Civil Air Patrol will allow the use of the popular miniature drones to enhance its existing mission capabilities. More than 40 CAP wings are now qualified to fly sUASs, which can be used for search and rescue, mapping and damage assessment after storms, photography and reconstruction analysis.

CELLPHONE FORENSICS

This map produced by CAP's National Cell Phone Forensics Team helped guide searchers Sept. 30 to a missing Colorado hiker – CAP's 117th save of fiscal year 2019, as credited by the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center. It was CAP's third year in a row with more than 100 saves, reflecting continuous advances in technology and training in one of the Air Force auxiliary's primary missions — emergency services.

3D TECH

Images taken by CAP aircrews using WaldoAir XCAM Ultra50 sensor pods clearly show burned houses in a subdivision damaged by wildfire in Paradise, California, about a year ago. The sensor pods, which can easily be attached to the wing struts of Civil Air Patrol planes, are being used more and more in CAP's disaster relief missions because of the high-resolution 3D photos they produce.

Anonymous Donor Gives $1M+
to CAP Foundation

Transformational Gift Shapes the Future of Civil Air Patrol

A former Civil Air Patrol cadet's $1,025,000 gift as part of an endowment agreement to benefit the Nebraska Wing was also announced at CAP's 2019 National Conference in Baltimore.

"This is an exciting development," said Maj. Gen. Mark Smith, CAP's national commander/CEO. "We appreciate this generous gift, which will greatly impact the squadrons in the Nebraska Wing for years to come."

The donor, who has served in multiple CAP wings as an adult, wants to remain anonymous but offered his gift to increase local funding.

"Civil Air Patrol has been such a significant part of my life, starting when I was a cadet," he said. "I've been fortunate to do well within my career and to be able to make this investment in the Civil Air Patrol Foundation, to specifically support the Nebraska Wing, both now and in the future."

Kristina Jones, CAP's chief of philanthropy and executive director of the foundation, said, "The motivation for the donor's gift before the National Conference was to inspire others to consider creating endowments with the newly activated Civil Air Patrol Foundation. Obviously, this is a significant gift in growing our Civil Air Patrol Foundation assets."

The donor is funding a permanent $1 million endowment with interest through the foundation to support Nebraska Wing needs. The endowment will be managed by the Civil Air Patrol Foundation.

In addition, the donor included $25,000 for a one-year challenge grant to increase unit fundraising in Nebraska.

"Our anonymous donor has a heart for seeing the Robert Whalen and Regena Aye about the $1 million gift for an endowment agreement to benefit the Nebraska Wing. Whalen is the wing's commander, while Aye commands the North Central Region, which includes Nebraska.

Nebraska Wing be successful in the long term," Jones said. "We are delighted to help fulfill his wishes."

Paul Graziani, the chair of the Civil Air Patrol Foundation's board of trustees, said, "We are thrilled this donor chose to invest his gift in the foundation. It really speaks to his cadet experience and wanting to give back to Civil Air Patrol in such a significant way. The timing is also impactful as we announce our foundation efforts to encourage others to endow scholarships for our youth and provide opportunities for our missions."

Civil Air Patrol Soars to GuideStar Gold En Route to Platinum

Understanding the importance of information and transparency for donors, Civil Air Patrol has been working diligently since 2017 to advance from GuideStar's bronze rating to gold and is on track to reach the highest level, platinum, by the end of 2020.

GuideStar is considered the gold standard resource for people exploring a nonprofit's transparency and effectiveness in achieving the stated mission. In fact, GuideStar's motto is "Better Data. Better Decisions. Better World."

Levels of transparency are bronze, silver, gold, and platinum. Each level requires increasing accountability and scrutiny according to GuideStar.org.

Bronze Seal: Assigned when basic information about an organization is posted so it can be researched.

Silver Seal: Earned as organizations become transparent about finances to establish trust.

Gold Seal: Awarded when goals and strategies are shared publicly.

Platinum Seal: Achieved by sharing quantitative measures of progress and results to show the impact of the organization.

Since Kristina Jones joined the Civil Air Patrol team in April 2018 as chief of philanthropy, the organization has been steadily climbing through the GuideStar levels. She immediately set her mind toward improving CAP's GuideStar transparency level from Bronze.

"We want people to know we're a good place to donate," Jones said.

And her efforts paid off. By the end of 2018, CAP had earned the Gold Seal, and now, the Platinum Seal is within grasp.

Jones and others in the Civil Air Patrol headquarters are hoping for many more contributions from donors who share those sentiments. Earning a GuideStar seal, especially gold and soon platinum, can only help when donors are making decisions about giving. According to GuideStar, each year millions of people use its information to make decisions about nonprofits, checking on their level of transparency and possibly using that information to make a decision about giving.

In fact, Jones would be delighted to help other donors fulfill their wishes, too.

ON THE COVER: Cadet Chief Master Sgt. Tabitha Plasschaert was the fourth Civil Air Patrol cadet to achieve her private pilot certificate through the organization's new Cadet Wings program, created in response to the nation's shortage of commercial and military pilots.

Mission Statement

Supporting America's communities with emergency response, diverse aviation and ground services, youth development and promotion of air, space and cyber power.
